

Cultural Conversations in General Practice Workforce Listening Sessions

Do you work in general practice in the South West?

Do you want to make working in general practice a good experience for everyone?

Please join one of our hour long virtual listening events where we will explore the culture and diversity of the general practice workforce in the South West. We want to hear from everyone, and everyone's experience is valued. You will be helping make general practice in the South West a place to nurture and support all our workforce.

In the listening event, Julie Roye, Head of Primary Care Lead Nurse East London Foundation Trust, National BME GPN Lead Nurse and her colleagues will organise small groups of people in facilitated discussions about their experience of cultural diversity in general practice. The listening events are a confidential, safe space, and no personal details will be shared.

We want EVERYONE, not matter what role you are in, to have a chance to participate.

To join an event, please click on the relevant link below on the date you chose to attend. No need to book, just turn up.
